As we step into the 21st century and memories of the 20th begin to recede, we are struck with profound awe as we reminisce over the panorama of events, developments, advancements, movements, moments and forces that shaped the Century and which have all indelibly etched their marks on human civilization. By any account, the 20th century is laden with superlatives; it is unique in the annals of humankind. The potency of political forces that whipped up prejudices and extreme nationalistic fervour that led to the slaughter of millions and brought humanity to the brink of annihilation, later manifest itself in economic forces that wrecked havoc and brought nations to their knees. We witness masses of humanity discarding the yoke of colonialism to form nation states and the ephemeral rise of people's movements toppling repressive regimes overnight like dominoes. The 20th century closed with the amazing phenomenon of the Internet.

What will the Web wrought? Will the next people's "revolution" occur on the Web? The borderless world has become a reality within this so-called virtual world. Its viral fecundity has been amply demonstrated a number of times. It is pervasive and no aspect of human civilisation is unaffected by its tentacular reach. Nevertheless, we are still grappling with the interactivity dimension of the Web. We are still exploring what the Web can be.

Macromedia is in the forefront of this exploration. As a professional Web designer or programmer, you are our partner in this exploration. You are the progenitor of this profound change in human society. You are the exponent of what the Web can be.

IdN and Macromedia have conceived this inaugural WWWhat Awards to recognise and honour the best in the Asia Pacific region. Let me take this opportunity to thank all participants in this contest and to congratulate the winners. I would also like to thank IdN for their meticulous organisation of these Awards and for "capturing" these Awards in print for the benefit of posterity and dissemination to a non-virtual audience. A special vote of thanks must also be extended to our volunteer panel of judges, who must have spent agonising hours of difficult evaluation.

Looking forward to the next exposition of what the Web can be.

Sein Chew
Senior Director, Asia Pacific,

April Greiman // Greimanski Labs studio

Head of Greimanski Labs studio

Recognised as one of America's leading designers and a pioneer of technology with graphic, environmental, motion and interactive formats, April has taught and lectured throughout the US and has participated in museum shows around the globe.

Dave Taylor // The Attik
Managing Director

A studio that really started in an Attik - Yorkshire, England - and whose founders, James Sommerville and Simon Needham, two Batley Art College students, gained their earliest design experience chalking on local walls, but which now boasts offices in London, New York, San Francisco and Sydney and specialises in "telling a story without telling a story".

Greg Rewis // Macromedia
Senior Internet Evangelist

A pioneer of desktop publishing, Rewis now specializes in Dreamweaver, Fireworks and Flash. Drawing upon years of experience and knowledge of Internet issues and technologies to solve sometimes daunting problems, he has consulted on many large web projects with companies such as Fox Sports, Cartoon Networks, American Express, JP Morgan and Disney.

Harry Saddler // MetaDesign

Information and interaction designer, research and commercial development

MetaDesign is a multidisciplinary design firm - founded in 1979 by typographer Erik Spiekermann - with offices in San Francisco and Berlin and a combined staff of more than 200 designers, technologists, planners and implementation specialists. Specializing in corporate identity and systems design, it counts some of Silicon Valley's biggest hi-tech names among its clients.

Before joining MetaDesign, Harry Sadler researched new document genres with Xerox PARC and designed prototypes of computing systems modeled on human activity with Apple Computer's Advanced Technology Group.

IdN's Creative Team

Needless to say, the region's premier digital-design magazine is itself produced by some of the most creative people in the business, whose challenge is to showcase some of the world's most interesting and innovative designers in an environment conducive to getting their message across to thousands of eager readers.

comment // IdN believes that Macromedia wwwhat? awards is one of the most successful web design contest of the Year 2000. We are excited to see the very encouraging feedback from both the entrants and the voters in the People's choice awards, reaching almost 1,000 entries and more than 140,000 voters participated. Because of the superior quality in many of the entries, we have experienced a hard time yet overwhelmed when selecting the 105 finalists. IdN is looking forward to next time exploration to wwwhat the web can be*.

Joe McCambley // Modem Media

Vice President, Worldwide Creative Director

McCambley is responsible for the creative quality of all of Modem Media work globally. Having overseen the creation of thousands of web initiatives and millions of brand/customer interactions, Joe and his talented team of creative directors may have more insight into what motivates behavior on the web than any team at any interactive agency in the world. A student of consumer behavior and industry trends, he has a special interest in reconciling client goals with the often conflicting goals of consumers.

John Warwicker // Tomato

Co-founder

The London-based design firm Tomato, is famous for its title sequence for the movie Trainspotting and its innovative approach to typography. A prolific writer and design "guru", he has contributed to numerous magazines, as well as co-authoring a book (mmm ... skyscraper, i love you). Warwicker was the media architect for Federation Square, Melbourne - new cultural centre.

Jonathan Wan // Sina.com.hk

UI Design Manager

Jonathan Wan started out as a graphic designer for an internet start-up company in Santa Clara, CA in early 1996, designing web sites for clients such as Acer, AT&T, and Charles Schwab, among others. In 1997, he served as an art director at APIdigital.com to set up web design department, and then joined Charles Schwab, as a project manager to implement both Chinese and Spanish web trading sites in San Francisco throughout 1999. Now at Sina.com, Jonathan is an UI design manager to design and develop leading Internet portal in Hong Kong.

comment // "what the web can be" macromedia wwwhat? awards 2000 = B2D2E2S2I2G2N : Business to Design to Education to Synergy to Innovation to Government to Network.

Lynne Spender // AIMIA

Executive Director

Having worked in publishing and the law for several years, Lynne Spender became Executive Director of the Australian Society of Authors in 1992 and remained in that position for 5 years. In 1998 she became Executive Director of the Australian Interactive Multimedia Industry Association, a national industry association for the Australian producers and creators of digital content. She has written several books including "Electronic Rights for Authors".

Rick Bennett // University of NSW

Lecturer

Englishman Rick, a veteran of the TV commercial and music-video promo worlds, is now an Australian citizen and is currently engaged in significant research into how the advances in digital technology can be best suited to the requirements of contemporary students in relation both to their own needs and those of today's design professions.

comment // The macromedia wwwwhat? awards 2000 was a great place for flash designers to come together and view each others work. Whether you are a 'first time tryer' or one of the leading interactive media agencies around, it is vital to see what others are doing with the medium. Of course the same old problems still exist like download time and browser compatibility but events like these awards and the community IdN helped provide go a long way to allowing designers to see how others cope with the restrictions. It is reassuring to view a place where people are pushing the software and not designing to what it seems to allow them to do ... the web is full of spinning fonts, expanding rectangles and dramatic industrial noises, so visiting the wwwwhat? awards submissions was a breath of fresh air ...

I was a pleasure to view and judge submissions and I congratulate all who took part and of course to the winners - "way hay!".

Shin Sasaki // Extra Designs

Creative Director

This Japan-based web-design studio does a wide range of graphic work, from printing to the website. Many of its works can be seen on its website www.extra.jp.org. Extra has collaborated with some foreign designers such as Fountain www.fountain.nu and a Danish magazine, Virus.

comment // When I received an email that invited me as on of the judge, i did not know how big the contest could be. Then at the end of 2000, I heard that there was almost 1,000 entries! This is much more than I expected.

This wwwwhat? awards 2000 was a good opportunity for me to know what is going on in Asian and Pacific. Because of the language barrier, I had not visited Asian web site often, honestly.

What the web can be anyway?

Simon Waterfall // Deepgroup

Creative Director

Simon co-founded this burgeoning design company with Gary Lockton in 1994 and in 1996 he gained a Masters degree in Industrial Design from the Royal College of Art. Last year he was on the panel of judges for the British Design and Art Direction Awards, the Royal Society of Arts Student Design Awards and the Design Week Awards.

Yat Siu // Outblaze

Chief Executive Officer and Founder

Outblaze is the first company to recognize and anticipate the massive market demand for community-oriented portal services and solutions.

Find a Destination... Select a Region Explore NSW

Chances are that when many people think of New South Wales, the first thing that springs to mind is Sydney. And that's fair enough - it is after all one of the most beautiful spots on earth, as well as a natural choice as host city for the 2000 Olympics. However, New South Wales is far from being all about Sydney, not to mention a mere series of major towns. Right across the state you'll discover places big and small that each hold certain pleasures to suit anyone's holiday tastes. It's all revealed here, where you can dig as deep as you like within the abundance of regions listed, or simply get the general lowdown and take it from there to head forth into this wonderful part of Australia. Just as you'll find it easy to find your way around the site, so too will the journey you make around New South Wales.

To help you choose your ideal holiday destination, click here to experience New South Wales...

Journey through a broad patchwork of contemporary Australian agricultural land and sample its internationally recognized food and wines. The region is bound together by a network of proud country towns with wide streets and grand old pubs. Today, the Riverina is the largest producer of wine in New South Wales and is famous for its dessert vine. European migrants have created an eclectic mix of cuisines throughout the region - restaurants, wineries and food stores sell a diverse range of foodstuffs. Events throughout the year celebrate the region's great food and wine tradition - and its mixed ethnic Italian heritage. Heritage buildings and pioneering reminders can be found in every township of the Riverina. People here are proud of their heritage. The Riverina is where your family can experience the pleasures of life on the land. Stay in a B&B, a country pub or a genuine farm stay. Add a splash of adventure with skydiving, bush walking or even whitewater rafting. But whatever you choose, the Riverina is a natural choice for those special holiday memories.

11 Hey, where's my space?

By Tina Tan

I hate cellphones - whether small, slim, sleek, black and hip or colourful, chunky and chunky. It's technology at its worst. Why would anyone want to be reached 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year? Who is that indispensable?

Why is there this need for constant and instant communication anywhere, and at anytime, during one's waking hours? And what kind of need is that? For hundreds of years, we have all functioned very well in buses, subways, shopping centres, hawkers centres, on roads, at public swimming pools, in restaurants, at the market stall, in libraries and in cinemas without telephones and without the knowledge or (in)security of being in the mode of instant accessibility.

I BELIEVE I CAN FLY

I BELIEVE I CAN FLY
The Joy of Flying Paper Airplanes
By: John Ho

I wear pretty thick glasses. If not for that wonderful emotion called "high school glass", I would be looking like a gnatfish from hell. That, my life's aspiration to take flight, don't quite get off the ground. I never even took those flying lessons that I'd been meaning to. Fear of rejection.

And I'm too chicken to go hang-gliding or sky-diving or bungee jumping.

For example, the most plane can do today and still fly back to you if you launch it sideways. That, there is no danger of it going somewhere else. Or if you're sitting the hour away in your office holding planes instead of holding up your report, you'll never have to worry about the plane accidentally flying into your boss's room. Then there is the Balsa-wood Plane, which is literally a balsa-wood paper airplane, and which flies in unpredictable patterns no matter how you launch it.

Makes no mistake - this is a precise art. The flying has to be very accurate, otherwise the

We, sellow, is a group of young people from Hang Kong who like the Internet and want to use it as a medium to express ourselves. The group name "sellow" shows our dissatisfaction of the current matters. We want to live with creativity and are looking forward to a better future. We understand that creating a web site can't change nothing. However, it's better than not. Let's start it up and keep on moving our thoughts and feelings towards the future.

objective // Our client Diasham, is the market leader in outdoor playgrounds, dustbins, gyms, and benches. As their clients include the Ministry of Development and other Condominium Property companies, an interesting site had to be developed to showcase the products they offer in Singapore. As Diasham is a distributor, not the manufacturers, details and information of each product is actually supported by the principal companies, eg. Burkes, in their main site. Hence this site is only to showcase what this distributor stands for and to provide an online catalog to prospective developers. The challenge of the web designer was to develop a strong brand image for the company as a market leader. In addition, it had to showcase all the products within a playground arena as most people think they only specialise in outdoor gyms. The Flash sequence is developed from the client's logo but utilizes sound and animation to literally bring the brand name and its logo 'alive'.

WHAT T H

A Tradition of Education and Entertainment
Beginning in Europe around 1760, jigsaw puzzles were offered as a new tool for teaching children geography. Educational purposes continued to drive the evolution and by the early 19th century, biblical, moral, and historical subjects were commonly presented in puzzle form.

Early jigsaw puzzles were expensive, hand-crafted luxuries often costing more than the average laborer's weekly earnings. As mass production techniques became commonly used, jigsaw puzzles became an affordable toy. Affordability enabled an explosion in popularity.

Today, jigsaw puzzles continue to be a popular and effective form for helping children to master all kinds of concepts and to develop new skills.

Puzzles intended for adults began to appear during the early part of this century. In the 1920s, the jigsaw puzzle was astonishingly popular. During 1930-33, puzzle sales averaged 6 million per week.

Throughout jigsaw puzzle history, there have always been a few companies devoted to producing very high quality products. Although expensive, these puzzles are considered by their aficionados to be treasured art objects.

Anno Williams, author of Jigsaw Puzzles: An Illustrated History and Price Guide, is the leading expert on jigsaw puzzles. The preceding comments have been extracted from her writings. A more complete historical summary is available here.

HIGHLIGHTS → Huanglong: captivating tranquil land

Huanglong: captivating tranquil land
 This is where the flowing grace of the central Chinese highlands goes way to the rugged beauty of the Tibetan Plateau.

Listed onto the World's Natural Culture Heritage by UNESCO in 1992 for its spectacular scenery, Huanglong, close to the red loess right, is a high-altitude valley gilded with vivid lakes set in the heart of pine-covered gorges.

The lakes were formed by the waterfall from the 3800m high peak of Shiwu Mountain. The water in the lakes are so limpid that believed to be existing only in the shade of the mythical fairy mother goddess.

The 1.5 km long and 3.5 km wide valley is covered by yellow rocks, thus making the valley look like a dragon from distance.

During the Ming Dynasty, the local government built a temple to worship the Yellow Dragon and the Immortal Immortal, a master of the Taoist faith. Although the temple is a man-made structure, it complements the surrounding beauty.

With few foreign visitors, it is a tranquil retreat with basic facilities to match. Some of the unexpected peaks you can see from Huanglong are actually in Tibet and many of the local people preserve traditional lifestyles: the region is filled with Buddhist temples and ancient pagodas, stupas and prayer adams many of the local people.

Silk Road ends of medieval legend
 Kashgar is a magical town, the sort of place that children read about in fables and fairy tales.

"FEEDING BARAZARS"
 named the great "Silk Road"

Situated a distant 4,000 kilometers (2,500 miles) from Beijing, it is a predominantly Muslim, drastically different city, desert oasis. And it is truly an amazing destination.

Since the first day of the Silk Road, Kashgar has been an important trading port and metropolis.

The road east led to China's vast empire, while the path west over the Karakoram Mountains led to Persia and the Mediterranean coast. The route north led over the Tianshan Mountains to Central Asia and the Caspian Sea.

The strategic importance and much of its medieval past can still be seen and felt, and is still in the town's beautiful Muslim architecture.

Daily life on the cosmopolitan streets of Kashgar is very much as it has been for centuries, be it in the morning bazaar, around the Grand Mosque, or in the Old Town, or in the huge and incredible destination.

China to Rebuild Largest Imperial Town-God Temple

The rebuilding of China's largest imperial town and temple, the Baolin Town-God Temple, was recently started. The temple, which was destroyed in the 1960s, is scheduled to be completed by next May.

Located near the famous Changde Imperial Summer Villa in north China's Hebei Province, the Baolin Town-God Temple was built in 1772 and is a new site of cultural relics under top provincial protection.

Occupying a land area of 3,500 square meters with a circumference of 2,600 square meters, the temple is regarded as top-level architectural group in the traditional style and features of the Han people, the dominating nationality in China.

Silk Road Tour

The Silk Road connects one of China's most strategically situated and richly varied regions, populated by the majority Han Chinese, nomadic Kazakhstani, Uyghurs, and other ethnic groups, and great legends who can trace their lineage back to the Middle East.

The advent of better roads, improved roads and faster boats means individuals can now reach China's far west, where they witness the dramatic isolation of the Gobi and Taklamakan deserts. Tucked deep in the desert are the ruins of ancient civilizations, including the Silk Road.

Others who may still be turned under the shifting sands, however, witness the ancient ruins of the Silk Road, including the ruins of the Silk Road, including the ruins of the Silk Road.

■ University Emblem and Logo

■ The Emblem

The Baptist University Emblem consists of three circular elements: the Bible, sun and book.

The Bible symbolizes the richness of biblical education while the sun and book symbolize learning to attain to perfection.

The name on the circular emblem, written from Hong Kong English, Mandarin, and in English, symbolizes the University's commitment to excellence in education and quality education for the "You were here world" and the University's mission to improve the education of quality.

Inside the blue circular, Baptists that reflect the University's mission. Christian is represented by a cross.

■ The Logo

The logo was first introduced after the acquisition of university status in 1984. Inspired from elements of the University emblem, the logo introduced the King emblem, the book and the sun. The emblem "K" created with the red and blue colors, the Chinese characters of education and progress, emphasizing the meaning of wisdom and wisdom culture.

The University logo consists of communication at a design incorporates both K and Sun. The thing thing designed for the logo, presented a Catalysts of the Sun in the Design 800, Shuen Ka Kwan & Lau Design. Considerable for designing the logo.

objective // This is a relatively small and simple site done for the band Humpback Oak. It was designed as an underground lair environment to reflect the band — essentially its dark and melancholic nature. Visitors are encouraged to explore the surroundings on their own; there is minimal spoonfeeding in terms of the navigation. In their process of exploration and discovery, I hope to get the visitors to better understand, feel and experience the essence of the band. Even the copy and the choice of words used in the navigation are those taken straight off the lyrics of the band. Although Flash is better known for its vector capabilities, this website explores using Flash in terms of compressed jpeg images to give a sense of "video" realism. So the user feels immersed in a "real" place. At the same time due to Flash's compression and streaming capabilities, one does not even need to view this site on a high-bandwidth platform.

 comments: Most flash usage is quite impressive. I am more impressed with the integration of standard web design and then twisting the reality by subtle usage of Flash and object manipulation to give the site a truly interactive feel.

objective // Taking the role of the Coca-Cola polar bear, to accumulate as much refreshing Coca-Cola as possible. A Flash movie shows the bear jumping onto an ice floe as he heads from Alaska to Singapore. An route, he goes fishing with his magnet lure to grasp cans, bottles and six-packs. Each has a separate value and the more he reels in and put in your trusty Coca-Cola cooler, the more points you get. There are numerous enemies in the deep who will break his line so they can keep the Coke for themselves. As time passes, the ice floe moves on the warmer waters of Hawaii and eventually Singapore. If the bear makes it to Singapore, he is able to deliver his bounty to his thirsty family in the tropical island.

objective // All the characters in Coca-Cola web-based Polar Bar Game are lovable polar bears in various stages of winter dress. The user plays the bartender who waits for customers to wander into his establishment. As each customer sits down, they are served a tall glass of Coca-Cola. It is the bartender's task to use his tap to keep each glass from being emptied. As time goes by, more and more patrons enter and the bartender must keep on his toes to make sure no one is neglected. Once three glasses are empty, the game ends.
